Largefigures show where trains meet. Trains run each way every day.

Trains will not leave any station before the time fixed in time table. Wood construction and extra trains will keep TEN minutes out of the way of time table train.

Train going from Rolla to Franklin will have the right of road in preference to train going from Franklin to Rolla, subject to the following rules: Train going from Franklin to Rolla will wait for train going from Rolla to Franklin 'I'wo hours after its' own regular time as by table, then proteed, keeping full two hours behind its own time as by table durith such delayed train is passed:

Train going from Rolla to Franklin it detained one hour and Fifty Minutes after the regular time, as by table of train going from Franklin to Rolla, will have lost the right of road and shall keep out of the way of such train going from Franklin to Rolla, by going on a siding not less than ten minutes before the time of arrival of such train proceeding as above.

All the general rules of Main Line [except where those that relate to the right to road differ,] will apply to the South-West Branch.

The clock in Freight Office at St. Louis being the standard time, the Conductors on S. W. Branch must regulate their watches by those of the Conductor of Mail West, each day.

Dr Smith

Letters for St. Louis and the East, must be in the office by 9 A. M., those for the West, by 4 P. M. Persons calling for the above letters will please say "advertised." R. P. FAULKNER, P. M.

Taken up by W. H. Hazard, living in Hawkins Township, Phelps County in the State of Missouri, and posted before me, one of the Justices of, the Peace in and for the County and State aforesaid, one mare pony of a black color, with white pides around the girth and a spot on the left side of the neck and also on the right side of the neck, left hind foot and leg white up to the stifle, right hind leg white to the hock, right fore leg white up to the knee, white face and mouth, thirteen hands high, supposed to be 12 years old next spring. Appraised to 16 dollars by Alexander Shepheard and F. M. Patterson, appointed for that purpose. Given under my hand, this the 2d day of January, 1863, John PERRY, [11-3w*]

LUCK IN FARMING. There are few words oftener upon the lips of a certain class of farmers, than luck.

Smith is a "lucky dog," because his corn never rots, his wheat never winterkills, his sheep never get into his rye, and his cows never invade his meadows or orchards. His crops are better than his neighbors, and even his wife and children have a more contented look than any other people. Everything the touches thrives. What a lucky inan Smith is! Now, the fact is, luck has nothing to do with Smith's success in

If you watch the man, you will find that every result he reaches is anticipated and planned for, and comes of his own wit and work. It is the legitimate reward of his labors; it would have been bad luck, if it had turned out otherwise. His corn always comes up, because he always selects: the seed himself, and hangs it by the husks in the garret, where it is thoroughly dried. _He_does not plant until the sun has warmed, the soil enough to give the germ an immediate. start. He drains his wheat fields with tiles, and the water that used to freeze and thaw upon the surface; and throw the roots of the wheat out and kill them, now passes down into the drains and runs off. His fields are green; and beautiful in the spring, while his neighbors are russet, brown and desolate. His fences are in repair, and his animals are not made breachy by the continual templation of dilapidated walls. His wife and children are coinforably clothed and fed, and are not kept in a continual fret and worry by a husband and father who has no system or energy in his business. "A time and place for everything," is the motto, carefully car-ried out. The shoemaker is always called in when his services are needed, ... and none of the household get wet feet, catch cold, have the fever, and run up a doctor's bill of twenty dollars, for the want of a cent's worth of leather at the right time, in the right place. Smith does not believe in luck. He knows that health in the family, and thrift upon the farm depend upon a thousand little things that many of his neighbors are lazy or careless to look after. So, while they are in the tayern, or loafing in the village, or running much in politics, he is looking after these little things, and laying his plans for the next year. ... He has good corn even in the poorest year, because the soil had the extra manure it needed to bring out, long, plump, well capped ears. He meant to have eighty bushels to the acre, and he has it, good measure, and running over.

Talk to him about luck, and he will say: "It is all nonsense. But luck simply a man with his hands in the breeches pockets and a pipe in his mouth, looking on to see how it will come out Good luck is a man of pluck to meet difficulties his sleeves rolled up, and working to make it come outright . He rargly fails, At least, I never did? Smith is right. Attend to your business, and you will have good look:

Mr. Cobben, in his speech at Roch-dale, fold the people of England that si
